INTERNATIONAL ACADEMIC DATABASE HACKED AGAIN

The International Academic Database has been attacked by hackers again.

This attack is the latest in a string of hacks performed in the last month.

The system is used to store the Academic history of millions of people. Federal Agents from the computer crimes division were today tasked with catching the criminals involved and determining what damage has been done.

Computer failure blamed for research loss

'Elite Associates' again found themselves in trouble as gigabytes of data were wiped from their system. In a statement today the company claimed it had evidence that the files were deliberately deleted by a malicious hacker.

The data deleted was the combined results of a large scale scientific test, being conducted by 'Elite Associates' in order to develop new technology. In a statement today the company said that serious damage had been done and that it could cost the company millions of dollars to perform the research again.

Experienced computer hacker finally caught

Earlier today a man was arrested by Federal Agents for 'NO REASON'.

The man's real name is Cody Rob and he is a well known player in the underground hacker scene. It is believed he is a full-time freelance hacker, working for several organised groups including the well known Uplink-Corporation, where he went by the hacker alias of 'Bermahn'. Police suspect this man of multiple computer crimes and as such it is believed he will serve between ten and fifteen years imprisonment, and most likely a life ban on the use of computers.
